Editorial Notes.

ANOTHER Hospital year has begun, and once more the Medical School is about to resume its daily round of work. We have seen several new faces in the Square already, but we must defer the publication of the complete roll of Freshmen to the next number of the JOURNAL. However, we now offer them one and all a hearty welcome.

* * *

In the first place let us point out that, by signing the Hospital register, each student has become an alumnus of a Royal and Ancient Institution—the oldest and largest of its kind in the British Empire. There will be some men, without doubt, who come from schools and colleges with ancient foundations, but we can safely claim that none of these date so far back as 1123, or possess such an unbroken record as St. Bartholomew's Hospital, the detailed history of which is to appear shortly in book form written by the able pen of Dr. Norman Moore.

* * *

EVERY Freshman, whether he comes straight from school or from the university, is entering upon a new sphere of life, but he is still in statu pupillari, and must adapt himself to his surroundings rather than try to make his surroundings suit himself. Therefore let us say that St. Bartholomew's is a home of traditions, and that to become a "Bart.'s" man is to begin life well by appropriating a name already famous; it is in the power of every student to make the best use of this name.

* * *

We do not mean to say that our Hospital is better than any other; each hospital has its good points, but we know that the name "Bart.'s" has a reputation all over the British Empire, if not throughout the civilised world. And so, in return for this gift of a good name, it is the duty of every Freshman to help to increase rather than to decrease the reputation of that name.
