Programme outline

The LLM in International Tax Law offers students the opportunity to develop their academic and professional expertise in domestic, international and comparative taxation and the tax systems of important tax jurisdictions, including emerging and developing jurisdictions. It also offers modules on specific areas of tax law such as transfer pricing, indirect taxation, tax and technology, taxation and trade and the taxation of individuals.

The programme is designed to meet the needs of practising and future tax lawyers and government officials as well as those planning to pursue further academic study of tax law.

Distinctive features of the LLM in International Tax Law include the type and range of tax modules offered and the flexible structure of the programme which, together with the wide range of postgraduate law modules offered at CCLS, allows students to tailor their tax law studies.

Aims of the programme

The aims of the LLM in International Tax Law are to:

- Assist students in developing a detailed, critical and in-depth understanding of key areas of tax law and policy, both domestic and international.

Programme Title:

- Provide students with the analytical and research tools with which to understand domestic and international taxation.
- Broaden and deepen students' understanding of their own jurisdiction's tax system by giving them the opportunity and the tools with which to explore the international and comparative law context.
- Enable students to pursue rigorous, independent tax law research.
- Address the needs of students who wish to practise tax law.
- Ensure a balance of theoretical rigour and practical application and relevance in the examination of tax law and policy.
- Enhance the students' learning experience through regular interaction with lecturers, practitioners, visiting academics and fellow students.

What will you be expected to achieve?

Students who successfully complete the programme will be able to:

- Understand the key legal principles, issues and debates in tax law and policy.
- Situate domestic and international taxation in their respective legal, political, economic and social contexts.
- Critically research and analyse complex tax law issues.
- Recognise the standard of research and analysis expected of a postgraduate tax law student and be capable of producing research to that standard.
- Understand the academic and practical aspects of tax law.

Academic Content:

A 1	Students will acquire a thorough understanding of the principles of domestic and international taxation.
A 2	Students will understand the primary features of domestic tax systems and of the international tax system.

How will you learn?

Students will learn through direct interaction with lecturers using a variety of teaching, learning and assessment strategies, including traditional and interactive lectures, seminar sessions, tutorials and e-learning. Students will also be expected to invest a significant amount of time in independent learning, including reading materials in advance of lectures/seminars, preparing class presentations, completing assignments and preparing for examinations.

In addition, students will need to carry out extensive research for essays and the dissertation. Students will be provided with access to a variety of legal resources, both physical and online, and will receive training on how to use them. They will have access to libraries including the College Library at Mile End, the University of London Library at Senate House, the Institute of Advanced Legal Studies Library and the first-rate resources of other libraries with collections in London (eg the British Library). Students will also have access to a wealth of online learning resources, notably online databases (LexisNexis, Westlaw etc) and electronic books and journals via the Queen Mary and IALS libraries. Via QMplus, the Queen Mary virtual learning environment, Queen Mary also offers students access to a range of learning materials, study guides and other support to complement teaching. All registered students at Queen Mary, regardless of their location or mode of study, will have access to the electronic resources referred to above.

How will you be assessed?

Assessment is by examination, oral presentation, essay and/or coursework for taught modules and, where elected, by dissertation.

How is the programme structured?

Please specify the structure of the programme diets for all variants of the programme (e.g. full-time, part-time - if applicable). The description should be sufficiently detailed to fully define the structure of the diet.

What are the entry requirements?

The usual qualification for entry to the LLM programme is a degree in law, or a degree with substantial law content, of at least upper second-class honours or the equivalent. Law graduates with lower second-class honours (or the equivalent) who also have other legal qualifications and/or substantial professional legal experience may also qualify.

Non-law graduates with a minimum second-class honours degree who have also obtained a Merit (or 60 percent) in the Common Professional Examination (CPE) or Graduate Diploma in Law (GDL) recognised by the relevant UK professional bodies may also qualify. Non-law graduates may also be considered on the basis of exceptional professional experience (of at least five years) in a legal area or an area directly related to their programme of study.

Applicants whose first language is not English must provide evidence of English language proficiency. The usual English Language Requirements for Postgraduate Law Taught Programmes apply. These may be accessed at <https://www.qmul.ac.uk/international-students/englishlanguage/requirements/postgraduate/taught>.

How will the quality of the programme be managed and enhanced? How do we listen to and act on your feedback?

The Staff-Student Liaison Committee provides a formal means of communication and discussion between the school and its students. The committee consists of student representatives from each programme in the school together with appropriate representation from staff within the school. It is designed to respond to the needs of students as well as act as a forum for discussing programme and module developments. The Staff-Student Liaison Committee meets regularly throughout the year.

The school operates a Teaching Learning and Committee which advises the school Director of Taught Programmes on all matters relating to the delivery of taught programmes at school level, including monitoring the application of relevant QM policies and reviewing all proposals for module and programme approval and amendment before submission to the Taught Programmes Board. Student views are incorporated in the committee's work in a number of ways, such as through consideration of student surveys.

The school operates an Annual Programme Review of its taught postgraduate provision. The Annual Programme Review is a continuous process of reflection and action planning conducted by those responsible for programme delivery; the main document of reference for this process is the Taught Programmes Action Plan, which is the summary of the school's work throughout the year to monitor academic standards and improve the student experience. Students' views are considered in this process through analysis of the Postgraduate Taught Experience Survey and module evaluations.

What academic support is available?

Students receive a comprehensive induction. Students are assisted with the preliminary stages of selecting a dissertation topic, drafting a research proposal, considering their methodology and developing the skills needed to identify and use relevant materials. Lecturers on taught modules are available to discuss any concerns students might have with regard to the particular module or its content.

Programme-specific rules and facts

In order to specialise in International Tax Law, LLM students must take at least 120 credits in modules on the International Tax Law programme.

In order to specialise in International Tax Law, PG Dip students must take at least 90 credits in modules on the International Tax Law programme.

Programme Title:

In order to specialise in International Tax Law, PG Cert students must take all 60 credits in modules on the International Tax Law programme.

Five modules on the International Tax Law programme (International Tax Law and International Tax Law in Practice, US International Taxation, EU Tax Law and Transfer Pricing) can be used to prepare for ADIT (Advanced Diploma in International Taxation) exam papers, and a dissertation on a tax topic can be submitted as an extended essay in lieu of the second or third ADIT exam paper.

Modules offered across the International Tax Law programme are accredited by the Solicitors Regulation Authority and the Bar Standards Board and confer CPD points.

How inclusive is the programme for all students, including those with disabilities?

Queen Mary has a central Disability and Dyslexia Service (DDS) that offers support for all students with disabilities, specific learning difficulties and mental health issues. The DDS supports all Queen Mary students: full-time, part-time, undergraduate, postgraduate, UK and international, at all campuses and all sites.

Students can access advice, guidance and support in the following areas:

- Finding out if they have a specific learning difficulty like dyslexia
- Applying for funding through the Disabled Students' Allowance (DSA)
- Arranging DSA assessments of need
- Organising special arrangements in examinations
- Accessing loaned equipment (eg digital recorders)
- Arranging specialist one-to-one 'study skills' tuition
- Ensuring access to course materials in alternative formats (eg Braille)
- Providing educational support workers (eg note-takers, readers, library assistants)

Links with employers, placement opportunities and transferable skills

There is a mentoring programme that matches students with available mentors from the profession. An embedded careers and professional development team provide guidance in identifying and obtaining relevant internships, valuable employment-related skills and other work-related opportunities. There is a programme of co-curricular activities designed to foster professional development and related skills.
