Programme outline

This four-year degree offers an exciting range of possibilities to develop and expand your understanding of one or more languages. You can study one, two, or even three languages; you don't need to have an A-level or equivalent in the language/s for a number of combinations. Your degree title will reflect up to two named languages that you have taken.

In your first year, you take one or two languages from the list that we offer as major subjects. As well as practical language study, you will work on related aspects of culture, history, and/or linguistics. If you take one language, you will also choose one or more optional courses - this may give you the chance to take up a second language as an optional module if you wish.

In your second year, various options are open to you. You can continue with the language/s that you took as major subjects in your first year, combining practical language study with courses on other related topics. Alternatively, if you began with two languages as major subjects, you can 'switch down' and concentrate on just one of them. Finally, if you began with two languages and have performed well in them both, you can 'switch up' by taking an additional language. There are two ways of 'switching up'. If you have studied a single major language and taken a second major language as an optional module, you can convert the second language into a major subject if it is offered at that level. If you have studied two languages as major subjects, you can take a third language from the list that we offer as a minor subject. Your third language can be a non-European language: Modern Arabic, Mandarin Chinese, or Japanese, or you can take Catalan or Portuguese as a minor subject. Some combinations of languages at different levels may not be possible, for timetabling reasons.

You spend your third year abroad, in a country or countries where your major language/s is/are spoken. You can study at a university, or take up a work placement - opportunities vary according to language and country. We give you extensive support and advice for arranging placements, and stay in touch with you while you are abroad.

In your final year, you continue with the subjects that you studied in your second year. On successful completion of your studies, you will be a proficient user of your major language/s, with a good understanding of related cultures and societies. If you have studied three languages, you will have become an independent user of your minor language. Whatever path you may have chosen, you will also have developed an impressive range of wider skills thanks to your studies in related topics such as linguistics, culture, and history. These not only enable you to acquire specialist knowledge of the topics, but also improve your abilities to analyse material, present arguments underpinned by evidence, evaluate different views and approaches to a subject, and express yourself effectively both orally and in writing.

Aims of the programme

1. To provide a coherent, innovative and intellectually challenging programme which promotes the study of language, linguistics, literature and culture to a broad constituency of well-qualified students.
2. To impart a high level of linguistic knowledge and skills, both productive and receptive, in the studied language(s), fostering an understanding of the language itself as a rewarding object of study, from the perspectives of linguistics and philology.
3. To give students access to a range of material in the foreign language(s) that is worthy of study either as a product of the culture concerned or in a broader cultural and intellectual perspective, or both. This material can be found in different media (written and visual, such as cinema) and different genres (fiction, theatre, poetry, philosophy and so forth). These aims intertwine, since the broader and deeper the student's knowledge of and skills in the language, the broader and deeper the understanding of the material they can achieve.
4. To encourage engagement with a wide variety of critical and theoretical modes of inquiry, enabling students to develop advanced skills of literary and cultural analysis, with attention to genre, period, form and style.
5. To enable students to develop independent critical thinking and judgment and to undertake independent research tasks.
6. To develop a range of skills necessary to the effective communication of ideas and arguments.
7. To develop a range of subject-specific and transferable skills appropriate to a wide range of subsequent careers; in particular, to develop graduates' capacity for further learning; to prepare them for further study or research; to equip them to meet international, national, regional or local needs.

What will you be expected to achieve?

The programme provides opportunities for students to develop and demonstrate knowledge and understanding, skills and other attributes in the areas below. The programme outcomes are referenced to the Framework for Higher Education Qualifications in England, Wales and Northern Ireland (2008), and relate to the typical student. Additionally, the SEEC Credit Level Descriptors for Further and Higher Education 2010 and Queen Mary Statement of Graduate Attributes have been used as a guiding framework for curriculum design.

Please note that the following information is only applicable to students who commenced their Level 4 studies in 2017/18, or 2018/19

In each year of undergraduate study, students are required to study modules to the value of at least 10 credits, which align to one or more of the following themes:

- networking
- multi- and inter-disciplinarity
- international perspectives
- enterprising perspectives.

These modules will be identified through the Module Directory, and / or by your School or Institute as your studies progress.

Academic Content:
A 1	Ability to demonstrate a knowledge of the core linguistic, literary and cultural concepts in the study of the chosen language/s. In addition, to evaluate different theoretical perspectives on these concepts.
A 2	Ability to illustrate the core analytical ideas relevant to these concepts, specify and apply these core analytical ideas.
A 3	Ability to identify the character of cultural products in the chosen language/s (influence of genre, history and function). In addition, to critically evaluate the character of such cultural products.

Disciplinary Skills - able to:
B 1	develop advanced oral, written and comprehension skills in the chosen language/s, becoming fluent and accurate users of the language in a wide range of domains and registers.
B 2	understand the socio-historical contexts of literary and linguistic aspects of the chosen language/s. In addition, to engage with theoretical models of such contexts.
B 3	construct cogent and sophisticated critical essays with evidence of independent study and initiative.
B 4	formulate theoretically informed arguments and express these clearly and effectively in the form of oral presentations.
B 5	bring critical skills to bear on the analysis of texts and other cultural products. In addition, to compare the effectiveness of different critical techniques.
B 6	demonstrate and deploy a range of key transferable skills appropriate to analytical investigation and independent critical thinking.

Attributes:
C 1	Demonstrate effective spoken and written communication skills, using IT competently, and adapting communication appropriately according to the social, professional or cultural setting.

C2	Critically evaluate information from a variety of sources to extend understanding of a subject or situation, and apply this knowledge confidently and constructively.
C3	Demonstrate the independent learning ability required for continuing professional development.

How will you learn?

The programme is taught in accordance with the Teaching, Learning and Assessment Strategy of the School. Teaching will be led by research-oriented staff and/or qualified language teachers as appropriate. These strategies aim to:

Foster a sense of community amongst students and staff in the pursuit of teaching and learning;
Promote the relationship between staff research, teaching and student learning;
Expose students to a diverse set of approaches to the study of their subject area;
Encourage students to take responsibility for their own learning and progress and to develop qualities of self-discipline and self-direction;
Inspire intellectual independence in students;
Employ a variety of assessment methods;
Prepare graduates for training and/or employment, or further academic study through the acquisition of transferable skills.

Teaching takes a number of forms, which may include:

Lectures;
Seminars, including a variety of group work;
Small group tutorials;
Workshops;
Lab work using multi-media resources;
Writing intensive courses;
Field trips;
Independent work by students, including research, presentations and peer review;
Individual supervision of projects and dissertations;
Individual and group feedback on written work.

How will you be assessed?

Assessment is typically by a combination of examination and coursework, or of different kinds of coursework. The kind of examination or coursework will vary with the content of each module. Examinations may take the form of essay questions, analysis or exercises. Coursework may consist of essays, longer research projects, textual commentaries, critical reviews, practical exercises, diaries of your own research, poster presentations. Oral presentations, suitably monitored, or in-class quizzes may also be used. Language examinations may include oral and aural assessments.

How is the programme structured?

Please specify the structure of the programme diets for all variants of the programme (e.g. full-time, part-time - if applicable). The description should be sufficiently detailed to fully define the structure of the diet.

Requirements

Students will take 120 credits in each year of study, including the Year Abroad. The Year Abroad is a compulsory and integral part of the degree programme, but exceptionally the School can exempt students from the Year Abroad. Exempted students will submit a change of programme form to change their degree to a 3-year degree. The programme requirements for the 3 year variant are exactly the same as for the 4 year programme but without the Year Abroad requirements.

September 2020 entry:

Students taking a single L1 language must take a minimum of 210 credits in modules relating to that language in the course of their degree in addition to the first-year compulsory module SML4006 Culture and Language, not including the Year Abroad modules.

Programme Title: BA Modern Languages

Students taking two L1 and L2 languages must take a minimum of 120 credits in modules relating to each language in the course of their degree in addition to the first-year compulsory module SML4006 Culture and Language, not including the Year Abroad modules.

September 2021 entry:

Students taking a single L1 language must take a minimum of 225 credits in modules relating to that language in the course of their degree, in addition to the first year compulsory module SML4006 Culture and Language not including the Year Abroad modules.

Students taking two L1 and L2 languages must take a minimum of 120 credits in modules relating to each language in the course of their degree in addition to the first year compulsory module SML4006 Culture and Language, not including the Year Abroad modules.

Students of two languages who are on the post-A Level or Native/ Speaker pathway for BOTH languages may be permitted to add a third L3 language in Year 1 with the guidance of their advisor. All other students may be permitted to add a third L3 language in Year 2 with the guidance of their advisor.

Structure

Each route is structured according to the language/s taken and entry level in the language/s

SINGLE HONOURS - ONE L1 LANGUAGE

What are the entry requirements?

The entry requirements are as stated in the Queen Mary prospectus for current entry, and on the Queen Mary website <http://www.qmul.ac.uk/undergraduate/coursefinder/index.html>

How will the quality of the programme be managed and enhanced? How do we listen to and act on your feedback?

Each school/institute operates a Learning and Teaching Committee, or equivalent, which advises the School/Institute Director of Taught Programmes on all matters relating to the delivery of taught programmes at school level including monitoring the application of relevant QM policies and reviewing all proposals for module and programme approval and amendment before submission to Taught Programmes Board. Student views are incorporated in the committee's work in a number of ways, such as through student membership, or consideration of student surveys.

All schools/institutes operate an Annual Programme Review of their taught undergraduate and postgraduate provision. APR is a continuous process of reflection and action planning which is owned by those responsible for programme delivery; the main document of reference for this process is the Taught Programmes Action Plan (TPAP) which is the summary of the school/institute's work throughout the year to monitor academic standards and to improve the student experience. Students' views are considered in this process through analysis of the NSS and module evaluations.

The Staff-Student Liaison Committee provides a formal means of communication and discussion between schools/institutes and its students. The committee consists of student representatives from each year in the school/institute together with appropriate representation from staff within the school/institute. It is designed to respond to the needs of students, as well as act as a forum for discussing programme and module developments. Staff-Student Liaison Committees meet regularly throughout the year.

Students are given the opportunity to provide feedback through the Module Evaluation system, and through Queen Mary and national surveys.

What academic support is available?

All students beginning study on the programme participate in a series of Welcome Week activities, which involve introductions to the programme and specific inductions in the use of the online learning environment. These events also include opportunities for social interaction, and scheduled small group and individual meetings with personal advisers.

Each student's academic progress and personal welfare is monitored by an adviser, the designated members of staff with whom students can raise issues and problems, and from whom they can seek advice and guidance.

All teaching staff hold regular advice and feedback hours in which students are actively encouraged to discuss their work and their progress.

There is a dedicated Student Experience Manager in the School of Languages, Linguistics and Film, who works with academic staff to assist students in need of support.

Where appropriate, students will be advised to make use of relevant professional service departments at QMUL, including Disability and Dyslexia, Welfare, and Counselling services.

The School of Languages, Linguistics and Film recognises how closely writing is linked to thinking; and how important writing skills are both in the academic and professional worlds, and collaborates with QMUL's Thinking Writing team which supports students in the development of their writing skills. QMUL also offers a range of services to support you in your learning and help you develop academically and professionally. These include: Academic Study Workshops, Academic English and Study Skills Support and One-to-One Tutorials working with you on your written assignments.

How inclusive is the programme for all students, including those with disabilities?

QMUL has a central Disability and Dyslexia Service (DDS) that offers support for all students with disabilities, specific learning difficulties and mental health issues. The DDS supports all QMUL students: full-time, part-time, undergraduate, postgraduate, UK and international at all campuses and all sites.

Programme Title: BA Modern Languages
