Programme outline

This programme gives you the analytical skills and deep knowledge of language that you gain from studying linguistics, plus the chance to do hands-on work collecting and analysing data. You'll develop systematic ways of understanding how the modern English language works, how it is used and how it changes, looking at situations as diverse as youth language in our multicultural and multilingual cities, or the English used in media and in politics. You'll consider how new technologies shape the form of English and whether the spread of English is changing or even killing other languages.

Aims of the programme

1. To provide a coherent, innovative, and intellectually challenging programme that promotes the study of contemporary linguistics and the linguistics of the English language to a broad constituency of well-qualified students.
2. To offer knowledge and understanding of the organising principles underlying a) the structure of language (phonetic, phonological, morphological, syntactic, and semantic); b) variation and change in the English language; c) the sociocultural and sociolinguistic dimensions of language; d) the psycholinguistic dimension of language

3. To offer students the opportunity to critically engage with current theoretical perspectives on topics in language and linguistics that are of particular interest to them.
4. To provide students with an opportunity and the necessary analytical skills to investigate for themselves aspects of the modern English language.
5. To enable students to develop independent critical thinking and judgement and to undertake independent research tasks.
6. To develop a range of skills necessary to the effective communication of ideas and arguments.
7. To develop a range of subject-specific and transferable skills appropriate to a wide range of subsequent careers, in particular, to develop graduates' capacity for further learning, to prepare them for further study or research, and to equip them to meet international, national, regional or local needs.

What will you be expected to achieve?

The programme provides opportunities for students to develop and demonstrate knowledge and understanding, skills and other attributes in the areas outlined in more detail below. The aims listed above directly respond to the Feb 2015 QAA Linguistics Subject Benchmark Statement aims for a Linguistics degree (sections 3.3-3.9, 3.11-3.19, 2.4). The programme outcomes are referenced to The Frameworks for Higher Education Qualifications of UK Degree-Awarding Bodies (2014). Additionally, the SEEC Credit Level Descriptors for Further and Higher Education 2016 and Queen Mary Statement of Graduate Attributes have been used as a guiding framework for curriculum design.

Please note that the following information is only applicable to students who commenced their Level 4 studies in 2017/18, or 2018/19

In each year of undergraduate study, students are required to study modules to the value of at least 10 credits, which align to one or more of the following themes:

- networking
- multi- and inter-disciplinarity
- international perspectives
- enterprising perspectives.

These modules will be identified through the Module Directory, and / or by your School or Institute as your studies progress.

Academic Content:
A1	Ability to demonstrate a knowledge of the core linguistic concepts in the study of the English language and evaluate different theoretical perspectives on these concepts.
A2	Ability to illustrate the core analytical ideas relevant to these concepts, specify and apply these core analytical ideas.
A3	Ability to demonstrate an understanding of evaluations of different analyses and develop informed evaluations of different analyses.
A4	Ability to demonstrate a knowledge of appropriate terminology in Linguistics and the English language, and apply the appropriate terminology in discussing Linguistics and describing and analysing the English language.

Disciplinary Skills - able to:
B 1	Identify issues (including ethical ones) in collecting reliable data relevant to the study of linguistics and the English language, and discuss these issues in an informed way.
B 2	Collect typical sorts of data, with minimal guidance.
B 3	Demonstrate an understanding of the issues involved in data analysis and an ability to use analytical techniques under supervision, evaluate and choose appropriate analytical techniques, and use them with minimal guidance.
B 4	Demonstrate and deploy a range of key transferable skills appropriate to analytical investigation and independent critical thinking.

Attributes:
C 1	Demonstrate effective spoken and written communication skills, using IT competently, and adapting communication appropriately according to the social, professional or cultural setting.
C 2	Critically evaluate information from a variety of sources to extend understanding of a subject or situation, and apply this knowledge confidently and constructively.
C 3	Demonstrate the independent learning ability required for continuing professional development.

How will you learn?

The programme is taught in accordance with the teaching, learning and assessment strategy of the school. Teaching will be led by research-oriented staff. These strategies aim to:

Foster a sense of community among students and staff in the pursuit of teaching and learning;
Promote the relationship between staff research, teaching and student learning;
Expose students to a diverse set of approaches to the study of their subject area;
Encourage students to take responsibility for their own learning and progress and to develop qualities of self-discipline and self-direction;
Inspire intellectual independence in students;
Employ a variety of assessment methods;
Prepare graduates for training and/or employment, or further academic study through the acquisition of transferable skills.

Teaching takes a number of forms, which may include:

Lectures;
Seminars, including a variety of group work;
Small group tutorials;
Workshops;
Lab work using multimedia resources;
Writing-intensive courses;
Field trips;
Independent work by students, including research, presentations and peer review;
Individual supervision of projects and dissertations;
Individual and group feedback on written work.

How will you be assessed?

Assessment is typically by a combination of examination and coursework, or of different kinds of coursework. The kind of examination or coursework will vary with the content of each module. Examination may take the form of essay questions, analysis, or exercises. Coursework may consist of essays, longer research projects, textual commentaries, critical reviews, practical exercises, diaries of your own research, poster presentations. Oral presentations, suitably monitored, or in-class quizzes may also be used.

How is the programme structured?

Please specify the structure of the programme diets for all variants of the programme (e.g. full-time, part-time - if applicable). The description should be sufficiently detailed to fully define the structure of the diet.

With Year Abroad variant

Programme Title: BA English Language and Linguistics

You will follow the structure of the three year variant with the following additional structure.

Students in their second year failing to apply for a placement for the third year will be transferred on to the 3 year programme at the end of Year 2.

Progression from Year 2 to Year 3 of 'with a year abroad' programmes is subject to the following criteria: 240 credits passed with an average mark of no less than 60.0% . Students who fail to meet the criteria will be transferred to the 3 year programme and be considered for progression under the rules that apply for that programme.

Progression from Year 3 to Year 4 of 'with a year abroad' programmes is subject to the following criteria: Passing year abroad in third year. Students who fail to meet the criteria will be transferred to the 3 year programme and be considered for progression under the rules that apply for that programme.

Prior to your departure you will meet and liaise with the International Study Tutor (or nominee) to identify the most suitable modules to take during your year abroad. These must then be approved and signed by the School's International Study Tutor (or nominee).

While you're abroad, you'll take a full diet of modules like the 'local' students at the overseas institution. You will need to take the Queen Mary equivalent of 120 credits and pass a minimum 90 credits (following the pass/fail standards of the host institution) in order to pass the year abroad. Your year abroad will be graded pass/fail and zero-weighted in the final calculation of your award classification

During your year abroad, you will be contacted by the School of the Arts inviting you to select your final year modules prior to your return. You will return to Queen Mary in your final (fourth year) and follow the structure of the degree on which you're enrolled.

If students fail the Year Abroad, then the award title they receive will have the "with Year Abroad" element removed.

What are the entry requirements?

The entry requirements are stated in the Queen Mary prospectus for current entry, and on the Queen Mary website (<https://www.qmul.ac.uk/undergraduate/coursefinder/?searchStudioQuery=&isGrid=false&facets=&orderBy=&start=0>).

How will the quality of the programme be managed and enhanced? How do we listen to and act on your feedback?

Each school/institute operates an Education Committee, or equivalent, which advises the School/Institute Director of Education on all matters relating to the delivery of taught programmes at school level including the monitoring of the application of relevant QM policies and reviewing all proposals for module and programme approval and amendment before submission to Taught Programmes Board. Student views are incorporated in the committee's work in a number of ways, such as through student membership, or consideration of student surveys.

All schools/institutes operate regular Programme Review of their taught undergraduate and postgraduate provision. Programme Review is a continuous process of reflection and action planning that is owned by those responsible for programme delivery; the main document of reference for this process is the Taught Programmes Action Plan (TPAP), which is the summary of the school/institute's work throughout the year to monitor academic standards and to improve the student experience. Students' views are considered in this process through analysis of the NSS and module evaluations.

The Student Voice Committee provides a formal means of communication and discussion between schools/institutes and students. The committee consists of student representatives from each year in the school/institute together with appropriate representation from staff within the school/institute. It is designed to respond to the needs of students, as well as act as a forum for discussing programme and module developments. Student Voice Committees meet regularly throughout the year.

Students are given the opportunity to provide feedback also through the Module Experience Survey system, and through Queen Mary and national surveys.

What academic support is available?

All students beginning study on the programme participate in a series of Welcome Week activities, which involve introductions to the programme, and specific inductions in the use of the online learning environment. These events also include opportunities for social interaction, and scheduled small group and individual meetings with personal advisers.

Each student's academic progress and personal welfare is monitored by an adviser, the designated members of staff with whom students can raise issues and problems, and from whom they can seek advice and guidance.

All teaching staff hold regular Advice and Feedback Hours in which students are actively encouraged to discuss their work and progress.

There is a dedicated Student Support Officer in the School of the Arts, who works with academic staff to assist students in need of support.

Where appropriate, students will be advised to make use of relevant professional service departments at QMUL, including Disability and Dyslexia, Welfare, and Counselling Services.

The School of the Arts recognises how closely writing is linked to thinking, and how important writing skills are both in the academic and professional world, and collaborates with QMUL's Thinking Writing Team to support students in the development of their writing skills. QMUL also offers a range of services to support students in their learning and help develop them academically and professionally. These include: Academic Study Workshops, Academic English, Study Skills Support, and Peer Assisted Student Support.

How inclusive is the programme for all students, including those with disabilities?

The curriculum is designed with Equality, Diversity, and Inclusion in mind, in terms of content and assessment design. QMUL has a central Disability and Dyslexia Service (DDS) that offers support for all students with disabilities, specific learning difficulties and mental health issues. The DDS supports all QMUL students: full-time, part-time, undergraduate, postgraduate, UK and international at all campuses and all sites.

Students can access advice, guidance and support in the following areas:

- Finding out if you have a specific learning difficulty like dyslexia
- Applying for funding through the Disabled Students' Allowance (DSA)
- Arranging DSA assessments of need
- Special arrangements in examinations
- Accessing loaned equipment (e.g. digital recorders)
- Specialist one-to-one "study skills" tuition
- Ensuring access to course materials in alternative formats (e.g. Braille)

Programme Title: BA English Language and Linguistics

- Providing educational support workers (e.g. note-takers, readers, library assistants)
- Mentoring support for students with mental health issues and conditions on the autistic spectrum

Links with employers, placement opportunities and transferable skills

Graduates from Queen Mary's School of the Arts go on to work in a wide variety of careers. Some apply their degree knowledge directly, entering careers in education or the arts, while others transfer skills gained during study into a diverse range of areas (public relations, business, civil service, etc.).
