Programme outline

Our BA joint honours programme in Film Studies and Drama is an exciting opportunity to study the dramatisation of our world across live and recorded media, and examines interrelated concepts such as production, mise-en-scène and spectatorship. You will be introduced to theories of performance and representation, and to key critical practices of twentieth and twenty-first-century theatre, performance and film. You'll develop critical skills, which will give you a crucial insight into fundamental aspects of theatre, performance and film, as well as creative skills in theatre, performance making, scriptwriting and filmmaking, for example. You'll also develop your communication and research skills, and skills in working collaboratively. Our staff – leading academics, practitioners, filmmakers and arts professionals – will work with you to make learning challenging and engaging, and encourage you to develop as a theatre and film critic, filmmaker, and informed theatre and performance maker.

Aims of the programme

The programme aims to:

1. Provide a coherent, innovative, diverse and intellectually challenging programme which promotes the study of film and drama to a broad constituency of students.

2. Offer knowledge and understanding of the history, practice and theory of drama and film studies, of theatre and cinema as institutions and cultural practice and of performance and mise-en-scène as forms of communication, expression and socio-political intervention.
3. Foster an understanding of the historical, cultural, political, aesthetic, ethical and intellectual contexts for the development of different forms of filmic and performance texts, practices, cultures and critiques.
4. Foster critical reflection on issues of diversity and difference that emerge from the study of and engagement with a range of forms, cultures and values through an inclusive, global and decolonising curriculum and learning environment, adopting multiple analytical perspectives, knowledge systems and interpretive scholarly frameworks.
5. Encourage participation in a culture of laboratory research, enabling you to use performance as a means for articulating ideas, and to undertake independent research tasks, including practice-based research.
6. Enhance literacy and creativity and develop skills in theatrical, dramatic and performance analysis, as well as oral and physical expression for the communication of ideas and argument.
7. To learn about the pre-production, production and post-production phases of filmmaking including the opportunity to have hands-on experience of how to produce, script, plan, research, film, edit and post-produce films.
8. Learn how to develop filmmaking projects via pitches, treatments, workshops and production folders.
9. Give access to a range of material and media that is worthy of study either as a product of the specific national culture concerned or in a broader cultural and intellectual perspective, or both.
10. Provide an opportunity to develop skills in interpretation, analysis, synthesis, critical appreciation, argumentation, communication, and study.
11. Enable the development of independent critical thinking and judgment and to undertake independent research tasks.
12. Develop a range of skills necessary to the effective communication of ideas and arguments.
13. Develop a range of subject-specific and transferable skills appropriate to a wide range of subsequent careers; in particular, to develop graduates' capacity for further learning; to prepare you for further study or research; to equip graduates to meet international, national, regional or local needs.
14. Understand how the study of film and filmmaking operates across a broader frame of interdisciplinary studies within and beyond the humanities.

What will you be expected to achieve?

On completion of this programme you should be able to (see list of Learning Outcomes below):

Please note that the following information is only applicable to students who commenced their Level 4 studies in 2017/18, or 2018/19

In each year of undergraduate study, students are required to study modules to the value of at least 10 credits, which align to one or more of the following themes:

- networking
- multi- and inter-disciplinarity
- international perspectives
- enterprising perspectives.

These modules will be identified through the Module Directory, and / or by your School or Institute as your studies progress.

Academic Content:
A 1	Demonstrate knowledge and understanding of a wide range of primary and secondary material related to Film Studies and Drama including cultural products (playtexts, performances, films, screenplays, reviews, critical works) and the concepts and techniques necessary to understand, analyse and produce them.
A 2	Demonstrate knowledge and understanding of intellectual, political and cultural movements such as decolonisation, psychoanalysis, feminism, modernism, post-modernism and postcolonialism.
A 3	Demonstrate knowledge and understanding of the national and international contexts of the texts studied, and the relation of these to aesthetic forms and to social, cultural, and political history.
A 4	Utilise technology appropriate to performance making, filmmaking, and digital communications.
A 5	Reflect critically upon the different ways in which the theory and practice of performance inform one another.
A 6	Develop a complex model for the relationship between performance, dramatic literature and theatrical practices and their social and historical contexts.
A 7	Use performance skills for the independent practice of theatre and performance.
A 8	Develop a personal perspective that can be expressed in terms of performance and communicated with clarity and coherence.

Disciplinary Skills - able to:
B 1	Analyse a performance or film text with sophistication and from diverse and decolonising perspectives.
B 2	Identify the historical, political and cultural contexts that inform the production and reception of an individual performance or film product.
B 3	Make theoretically informed connections between texts of different periods, forms and cultures.
B 4	Construct cogent and sophisticated essays, written, creative, experiential and reflective coursework output with evidence of independent study, research and initiative.
B 5	Formulate theoretically informed arguments and express these clearly and effectively in the form of oral presentations and use technology appropriate to filmmaking, and its basic applications.
B 6	Demonstrate and deploy a range of key transferable skills appropriate to analytical investigation and independent critical thinking.
B 7	Acquire some hands-on experience of filmmaking.

Attributes:
C 1	Utilise effective verbal and written communication skills, using IT competently, and adapting communication appropriately according to the social, professional or cultural setting.
C 2	Utilise IT skills to present and communicate using electronic means, to find and lodge information in the Internet, to search databases and to produce electronic documents.
C 3	Work effectively with others, to listen to others' points of view and to express one's own in a sensitive, inclusive, and enabling manner whilst also demonstrating the independent learning ability required for continuing professional development.

C 4	Utilise effective time-management abilities in order to work to deadlines and pursue several different assignments or tasks simultaneously.
C 5	Reflect critically on the issues of diversity and difference that emerge from the study of and engagement with different forms, cultures and values.
C 6	Work collaboratively, influencing, negotiating and leading others as appropriate.
C 7	Evaluate perspectives from different disciplines and global standpoints.

How will you learn?

The programme is taught in accordance with the Teaching and Learning Strategy of the School of the Arts. These strategies aim to:

Foster a sense of community amongst students and staff in the pursuit of teaching and learning;
Promote the relationship between staff research, teaching and student learning;
Expose you to a diverse set of approaches to the study of your subject area, facilitating decolonising approaches;
Encourage you to take responsibility for your own learning and progress and to develop qualities of self-discipline and self-direction;
Inspire intellectual independence;
Employ a variety of assessment methods;
Prepare graduates for training and/or employment, or further academic study through the acquisition of transferable skills.

Teaching takes a number of forms, including:

- *workshops, including physical techniques, use of technologies and materials;
- *seminars, involving a variety of forms of group work;
- *small group tutorials;
- *lectures;
- *screenings;
- *filmmaking;
- *film curatorship;
- *engagements with film festivals;
- *writing retreats;
- *lab work using multi-media resources;
- *field trips, performance and gallery visits;
- *presentations by and discussions with visiting artists and writers;
- *individual guidance and feedback on work;
- *individual supervision of projects and dissertations;
- *independent work by students, including research, presentations and peer review;
- *group discussion of written and practical work;
- *writing intensive modules.

How will you be assessed?

Assessment takes a number of forms within the programme. The nature of the assessment is closely connected to the desired learning outcomes and the mode of teaching within each module. Non-assessed tasks (e.g. presentations, written submissions) may also be used.

Forms of assessment in Film: Assessment will typically be via different types of coursework. This will vary according to the content of the module. Coursework may consist of essays, longer research projects, textual commentaries, critical reviews, practical exercises, diaries of your own research, poster presentations, short film productions. Oral presentations, suitably monitored, or in-class quizzes may also be used.

Forms of assessment in Drama include:

essays;
written exercises (e.g. reviews, programme notes, feature articles, keyword definitions, site analyses, design analyses, pilot pieces, encyclopedia entries, blog posts, director's notes, funding applications);
presentations (group and individual);
portfolios (written and e-portfolios);
performance projects (group and individual);
proposals (for essays and performance projects);
multi-media (e.g. podcasts, annotated videos, websites);
dissertation

How is the programme structured?

Please specify the structure of the programme diets for all variants of the programme (e.g. full-time, part-time - if applicable). The description should be sufficiently detailed to fully define the structure of the diet.

Up to 30 credits may be at level 5 with the advisors' agreement.

With Year Abroad variant

You will follow the structure of the three year variant with the following additional structure.

Students in their second year failing to apply for a placement for the third year will be transferred on to the 3 year programme at the end of Year 2.

Progression from Year 2 to Year 3 of 'with a year abroad' programmes is subject to the following criteria: 240 credits passed with an average mark of no less than 60.0% . Students who fail to meet the criteria will be transferred to the 3 year programme and be considered for progression under the rules that apply for that programme.

Progression from Year 3 to Year 4 of 'with a year abroad' programmes is subject to the following criteria: Passing year abroad in third year. Students who fail to meet the criteria will be transferred to the 3 year programme and be considered for progression under the rules that apply for that programme.

Prior to your departure you will meet and liaise with the International Study Tutor (or nominee) to identify the most suitable modules to take during your year abroad. These must then be approved and signed by the School's International Study Tutor (or nominee).

While you're abroad, you'll take a full diet of modules like the 'local' students at the overseas institution. You will need to take the Queen Mary equivalent of 120 credits and pass a minimum 90 credits (following the pass/fail standards of the host institution) in order to pass the year abroad. Your year abroad will be graded pass/fail and zero-weighted in the final calculation of your award classification

During your year abroad, you will be contacted by the School of the Arts inviting you to select your final year modules prior to your return. You will return to Queen Mary in your final (fourth year) and follow the structure of the degree on which you're enrolled.

If students fail the Year Abroad, then the award title they receive will have the "with Year Abroad" element removed.

What are the entry requirements?

The entry requirements are as stated in the Queen Mary prospectus for current entry, and on the Queen Mary website <http://www.qmul.ac.uk/undergraduate/coursefinder/index.html>

How will the quality of the programme be managed and enhanced? How do we listen to and act on your feedback?

Each school/institute operates an Education Committee, or equivalent, which advises the School/Institute Director of Education on all matters relating to the delivery of taught programmes at school level including the monitoring of the application of relevant QM policies and reviewing all proposals for module and programme approval and amendment before submission to Taught Programmes Board. Student views are incorporated in the committee's work in a number of ways, such as through student membership, or consideration of student surveys.

All schools/institutes operate regular Programme Review of their taught undergraduate and postgraduate provision. Programme Review is a continuous process of reflection and action planning that is owned by those responsible for programme delivery; the main document of reference for this process is the Taught Programmes Action Plan (TPAP), which is the summary of the school/institute's work throughout the year to monitor academic standards and to improve the student experience. Students' views are considered in this process through analysis of the NSS and module evaluations.

The Student Voice Committee provides a formal means of communication and discussion between schools/institutes and students. The committee consists of student representatives from each year in the school/institute together with appropriate representation from staff within the school/institute. It is designed to respond to the needs of students, as well as act as a forum for discussing programme and module developments. Student Voice Committees meet regularly throughout the year.

Students are given the opportunity to provide feedback also through the Module Experience Survey system, and through Queen Mary and national surveys.

What academic support is available?

All students beginning study on the programme participate in a series of Welcome Week activities, which involve introductions to the programme, and specific inductions in the use of the online learning environment. These events also include opportunities for social interaction, and scheduled small group and individual meetings with personal advisers.

Each student's academic progress and personal welfare is monitored by an adviser, the designated members of staff with whom students can raise issues and problems, and from whom they can seek advice and guidance.

All teaching staff hold regular Advice and Feedback Hours in which students are actively encouraged to discuss their work and progress.

There is a dedicated Student Support Officer in the School of the Arts, who works with academic staff to assist students in need of support.

Where appropriate, students will be advised to make use of relevant professional service departments at QMUL, including Disability and Dyslexia, Welfare, and Counselling Services.

The School of the Arts recognises how closely writing is linked to thinking, and how important writing skills are both in the academic and professional world, and collaborates with QMUL's Thinking Writing Team to support students in the development of their writing skills. QMUL also offers a range of services to support students in their learning and help develop them academically and professionally. These include: Academic Study Workshops, Academic English, Study Skills Support, and Peer Assisted Student Support.

How inclusive is the programme for all students, including those with disabilities?

QMUL has a central Disability and Dyslexia Service (DDS) that offers support for all students with disabilities, specific learning differences and mental health issues. The DDS supports all QMUL students: full-time, part-time, undergraduate, postgraduate, UK and international at all campuses and all sites.

Students can access advice, guidance and support in the following areas:

- Finding out if you have a specific learning difference like dyslexia
- Applying for funding through the Disabled Students' Allowance (DSA)
- Arranging DSA assessments of need
- Special arrangements in examinations
- Accessing loaned equipment (e.g. digital recorders)
- Specialist one-to-one "study skills" tuition
- Ensuring access to course materials in alternative formats (e.g. Braille)
- Providing educational support workers (e.g. note-takers, readers, library assistants)
- Mentoring support for students with mental health issues and conditions on the autistic spectrum.
