Programme outline

Film is a genuinely interdisciplinary academic field. Encountering films of different genres, styles, periods and national industries is the core of the subject. As a film student you will naturally devote a lot of time to viewing films, reading and writing about them, and discussing their meaning and importance.

Through practical modules, you will also gain hands-on experience of the roles of producer, director, screenwriter and actor, gaining crucial insights into the fundamental aspects of film production. However, this is just the beginning. Film is a 'gateway subject' that inevitably fosters an understanding of visual aesthetics, narrative forms and technological ability, but that also leads students into areas of study as diverse as history, politics, philosophy, technology and performance.

Aims of the programme

1. To provide a coherent, innovative and intellectually challenging programme which promotes the study of film to a broad constituency of well-qualified students.
2. To offer knowledge and understanding of the history, practice and theory of film studies, of cinema as institution and cultural practice and of performance and mise-en-scène as forms of communication, expression and socio-political intervention.

3. To foster an understanding of the historical, aesthetic and intellectual contexts for the development of different forms of filmic texts, practices and critiques.
4. To give students access to a range of material and media that is worthy of study either as a product of the specific national culture concerned or in a broader cultural and intellectual perspective, or both.
5. To provide an opportunity to develop skills in interpretation, analysis, synthesis, critical appreciation, argumentation, communication, and study.
6. To familiarize students with the key technical and practical aspects of film production and give students practical experience of making films.
7. To enable students to develop independent critical thinking and judgment and to undertake independent research tasks.
8. To develop a range of skills necessary to the effective communication of ideas and arguments.
9. To develop a range of subject-specific and transferable skills appropriate to a wide range of subsequent careers; in particular, to develop graduates' capacity for further learning; to prepare them for further study or research; to equip them to meet international, national, regional or local needs.

What will you be expected to achieve?

The programme provides opportunities for students to develop and demonstrate knowledge and understanding, skills and other attributes in the areas below. The programme outcomes are referenced to the Framework for Higher Education Qualifications in England, Wales and Northern Ireland (2008), and relate to the typical student. Additionally, the SEEC Credit Level Descriptors for Further and Higher Education 2010 and Queen Mary Statement of Graduate Attributes have been used as a guiding framework for curriculum design.

Please note that the following information is only applicable to students who commenced their Level 4 studies in 2017/18, or 2018/19

In each year of undergraduate study, students are required to study modules to the value of at least 10 credits, which align to one or more of the following themes:

- networking
- multi- and inter-disciplinarity
- international perspectives
- enterprising perspectives.

These modules will be identified through the Module Directory, and / or by your School or Institute as your studies progress.

Academic Content:

A 1	Ability to demonstrate a knowledge of the core concepts in the study of film and evaluate different theoretical perspectives on these concepts.
A 2	Ability to demonstrate knowledge and understanding of a wide range of primary and secondary material related Film Studies including cultural products (literary works, films, screenplays, reviews, critical works) and the concepts and techniques necessary to understand, analyse and produce them.
A 3	Ability to demonstrate knowledge and understanding of the national and international contexts of the films studied, and the relation of these to aesthetic forms and to social and political history.

Disciplinary Skills - able to:
B 1	analyse film and related cultural products with sophistication.
B 2	construct cogent and sophisticated critical essays with evidence of independent study and initiative.
B 3	formulate theoretically informed arguments and express these clearly and effectively in the form of oral presentations.
B 4	bring critical skills to bear on the analysis of texts. In addition, to compare the effectiveness of different critical techniques.
B 5	demonstrate and deploy a range of key transferable skills appropriate to analytical investigation and independent critical thinking.
B 6	use technology appropriate to filmmaking, and its basic applications.

Attributes:
C 1	Demonstrate effective spoken and written communication skills, using IT competently, and adapting communication appropriately according to the social, professional or cultural setting.
C 2	Critically evaluate information from a variety of sources to extend understanding of a subject or situation, and apply this knowledge confidently and constructively.
C 3	Demonstrate the independent learning ability required for continuing professional development.
C 4

How will you learn?

The programme is taught in accordance with the Teaching, Learning and Assessment Strategy of the School. Teaching will be led by research-oriented staff. These strategies aim to:

Foster a sense of community amongst students and staff in the pursuit of teaching and learning;
Promote the relationship between staff research, teaching and student learning;
Expose students to a diverse set of approaches to the study of their subject area;
Encourage students to take responsibility for their own learning and progress and to develop qualities of self-discipline and self-direction;
Inspire intellectual independence in students;
Employ a variety of assessment methods;
Prepare graduates for training and/or employment, or further academic study through the acquisition of transferable skills.

Teaching takes a number of forms, which may include:

Lectures;
Seminars, including a variety of group work;
Small group tutorials;
Workshops;
Lab work using multi-media resources;
Writing intensive courses;
Field trips;
Independent work by students, including research, presentations and peer review;
Individual supervision of projects and dissertations;
Individual and group feedback on written work.

How will you be assessed?

Assessment is typically by a combination of examination and coursework, or of different kinds of coursework. The kind of examination or coursework will vary with the content of each module. Examinations may take the form of essay questions, analysis or exercises. Coursework may consist of essays, longer research projects, textual commentaries, critical reviews, practical exercises, diaries of your own research, poster presentations, short film productions. Oral presentations, suitably monitored, or in-class quizzes may also be used.

How is the programme structured?

Please specify the structure of the programme diets for all variants of the programme (e.g. full-time, part-time - if applicable). The description should be sufficiently detailed to fully define the structure of the diet.

With Year Abroad variant

You will follow the structure of the three year variant with the following additional structure.

Students in their second year failing to apply for a placement for the third year will be transferred on to the 3 year programme at the end of Year 2.

Programme Title: BA Film

Progression from Year 2 to Year 3 of 'with a year abroad' programmes is subject to the following criteria: 240 credits passed with an average mark of no less than 60.0% . Students who fail to meet the criteria will be transferred to the 3 year programme and be considered for progression under the rules that apply for that programme.

Progression from Year 3 to Year 4 of 'with a year abroad' programmes is subject to the following criteria: Passing year abroad in third year. Students who fail to meet the criteria will be transferred to the 3 year programme and be considered for progression under the rules that apply for that programme.

Prior to your departure you will meet and liaise with the International Study Tutor (or nominee) to identify the most suitable modules to take during your year abroad. These must then be approved and signed by the School's International Study Tutor (or nominee).

While you're abroad, you'll take a full diet of modules like the 'local' students at the overseas institution. You will need to take the Queen Mary equivalent of 120 credits and pass a minimum 90 credits (following the pass/fail standards of the host institution) in order to pass the year abroad. Your year abroad will be graded pass/fail and zero-weighted in the final calculation of your award classification

During your year abroad, you will be contacted by the School of the Arts inviting you to select your final year modules prior to your return. You will return to Queen Mary in your final (fourth year) and follow the structure of the degree on which you're enrolled.

If students fail the Year Abroad, then the award title they receive will have the "with Year Abroad" element removed.

What are the entry requirements?

The entry requirements are as stated in the Queen Mary prospectus for current entry, and on the Queen Mary website <http://search.qmul.ac.uk/s/search.html?collection=queenmary-coursefinder-pg&query=&sort=title>

How will the quality of the programme be managed and enhanced? How do we listen to and act on your feedback?

The Student Voice Committee provides a formal means of communication and discussion between the School of the Arts and its students. The committee consists of student representatives from each year in the School together with appropriate representation from staff. It is designed to respond to the needs of students, as well as act as a forum for discussing programme and module developments, and meets regularly throughout the year.

It reports in turn to the School of the Arts Education Committee (including the Director of Education), which advises the School Board on all matters relating to the delivery of taught programmes at School level including monitoring the application of relevant QM policies and reviewing all proposals for module and programme approval and amendment before submission to the university's Taught Programmes Board. Student views are incorporated in this Committee's work in a number of ways, such as through student membership, or consideration of student surveys.

The School of the Arts operates regular Programme Reviews of taught undergraduate and postgraduate provision according to University policies. The process is normally organised at a School-level basis with the Director of Education, or equivalent, responsible for the completion of the School's Programme Reviews. Students' views are considered in this process through analysis of the Postgraduate Taught Experience Survey and module evaluations.

What academic support is available?

All students beginning study on the programme will participate in a series of Welcome Week activities, including introductions to the programme, inductions in the use of the online learning environment and the use of the School's practical spaces and technical facilities. These events also include opportunities for social interaction and scheduled small group and individual meetings with personal advisers.

Each student's academic progress and personal welfare is monitored by an advisor, with whom regular meetings are scheduled. All teaching staff will hold regular drop-in hours in which students are actively encouraged to discuss their work and their progress.

The School's Director of Student Support is a designated member of staff with whom students can also raise issues and problems, and from whom they can seek advice and guidance.

Both the Director of Student Support and all advisors are able to refer students, where appropriate, to relevant professional service departments in the College, including Disability and Dyslexia, Welfare, and Counselling.

How inclusive is the programme for all students, including those with disabilities?

All students are allocated an advisor and have access to a range of resources available at QM. Students with disabilities, specific learning differences and mental health issues are supported by the Disability and Dyslexia Service, which offers support in the following areas:

- Finding out if you have a specific learning difference like dyslexia
- Applying for funding through the Disabled Students' Allowance (DSA)
- Arranging DSA assessments of need
- Special arrangements in examinations
- Accessing loaned equipment (e.g. digital recorders)
- Specialist one-to-one "study skills" tuition
- Ensuring access to course materials in alternative formats (e.g. Braille)
- Providing educational support workers (e.g. note-takers, readers, library assistants)
- Mentoring support for students with mental health issues and conditions on the autistic spectrum.

Links with employers, placement opportunities and transferable skills

Film students graduate with a broad range of skills that can take them through to successful careers. This, coupled with multiple opportunities for extra-curricular activities and work experience, prepares them for the world of work.

Some apply their degree knowledge directly, entering careers such as directing and film production, whilst others transfer their skills into areas such as public relations and marketing.

Recent graduates have been hired by:

British Film Council
Coda Post Productions
Epic Media
Flame TV
Heineken UK
Spark in the Dark Productions

Film students receive advice on how to gain work experience in the film industry, which can give you an edge in a competitive job market. Thanks to our London location, you may get the chance to work in a film-related part-time job or self-directed work placement during your studies.

Our careers team can also offer:

- specialist advice on choosing a career path
- support with finding work experience, internships and graduate jobs
- feedback on CVs, cover letters and application forms
- interview coaching
